I. Introduction

1. The present report contains observations by the Special Rapporteur on extrajudicial, summary or arbitrary executions on communications sent between 1 March 2013 and 28 February 2014 and responses received from States and other actors between 1 May 2013 and 30 April 2014. During the period under review, the Special Rapporteur sent a total of 128 communications to 55 States and other actors. This includes 75 urgent appeals and 53 allegation letters. The main issues covered in the communications were attacks or killings (56), the death penalty (39), excessive use of force (21), death threats (22), deaths in custody (8), impunity (2), expulsion (4) and armed conflict (4). The numbers of the main issues do not accord with the total number of communications due to the fact that some communications addressed more than one issue.

2. The Special Rapporteur received responses to 53 communications sent within the reporting period. He thanks all Governments who have replied to his communications for their cooperation. 75 of the communications are yet to be responded to. In all instances where no responses were received, the Special Rapporteur urges Governments to provide substantive responses. In this period, the Special Rapporteur also received replies to 14 previous communications, i.e. sent prior to the reporting period. This amounts to approximately 41,4 % response rate which represents a decrease compared to the 45,6 % response rate observed for the previous reporting period 2012-2013 (see A/HRC/23/47/Add.5, para. 2).

3. In its resolution 17/5, the Human Rights Council urged States “[t]o cooperate with and assist the Special Rapporteur in the performance of his or her tasks, to supply all necessary information requested by him or her and to react appropriately and expeditiously to his or her urgent appeals, and those Governments that have not yet responded to communications transmitted to them by the Special Rapporteur to do so without further delay”. Therefore, the Special Rapporteur reiterates his appeal to all Governments to respond to communications in a timely manner so as to assist and cooperate with his mandate efficiently in accordance with Human Rights Council Resolution 17/5.

II. Classification of communications and replies

4. For ease of reference, this report summarizes the correspondence regarding each communication. Communications have been grouped by country, with countries listed alphabetically according to their names in English. Each communication is referenced as urgent appeal (UA), allegation letter (AL), joint urgent appeal (JUA) and joint allegation letter (JAL). This is followed by the date when the communication was issued, as well as the case number and, when applicable, the State’s reply. The electronic version of the present document has both of these items hyperlinked, and clicking on them will open the communication sent and the reply from the concerned State, respectively, as uploaded on the OHCHR website. Finally, in bold, is a summary of the allegations contained in the communication in the language of submission. All communications are also available in the Special Procedures communication reports.

A. Violations alleged

5. In the table on communications and replies contained in section III, the violations are classified into the following categories:

- (a) Non-respect of international standards on safeguards and restrictions relating to the imposition of capital punishment (“Death penalty safeguards”);
- (b) Death threats and fear of imminent extrajudicial executions by State officials, paramilitary groups, or groups cooperating with or tolerated by the Government, as well as unidentified persons who may be linked to the categories mentioned above, when the Government is failing to take appropriate protection measures (“Death threats”);
- (c) Deaths in custody owing to torture, neglect, or the use of force, or fear of death in custody due to life-threatening conditions of detention (“Deaths in custody”);
- (d) Deaths due to the use of force by law enforcement officials or persons acting in direct or indirect compliance with the State, when the use of force is inconsistent with the criteria of absolute necessity and proportionality (“Excessive force”);
- (e) Deaths due to attacks or killings by security forces of the State, or by paramilitary groups, death squads, or other private forces cooperating with or tolerated by the State (“Attacks or killings”);
- (f) Violations of the right to life during armed conflict, especially of the civilian population and other non-combatants, contrary to international humanitarian law (“Violations of right to life in armed conflict”);
- (g) Expulsion, refoulement, or return of persons to a country or a place where their lives are in danger (“Expulsion”);
- (h) Impunity, compensation and the rights of victims (“Impunity”).

The short versions contained in parentheses are used in the tabulation of communications.

B. Character of replies received

6. The replies received have been classified according to the following six categories designed to assist the Human Rights Council in its task of evaluating the responses received to the communications sent within the reporting period and the effectiveness of the mandate:

- (a) “No response” denotes the absence of a response to a communication sent within the reporting period;
- (b) “Recent communication” denotes the absence of a response to a communication sent within the past 60 days;
- (c) “Procedural response” refers to a reply acknowledging receipt that the communication was received and/or that it has been transmitted to the relevant State authorities;
- (d) “Addresses some substantive issues” characterizes a reply that provided information on certain substantive issues raised in the communication;
- (e) “Substantive response” denotes a reply that is responsive to the allegations and that substantively clarifies the facts. It does not, however, imply that the action taken necessarily complies with international human rights law.
- (f) “Translation awaited” indicates that a response has been received, but has not yet been translated by the relevant services of the United Nations.

C. Observations of the Special Rapporteur

7. In order to underscore the importance of the dialogue between the Special Rapporteur and States, this report contains brief comments by the Special Rapporteur on the extent to which he considers each reply to have responded adequately to the concerns arising under the mandate. An indication is also provided in instances in which additional information is required to respond effectively to the information received.

IV. Tabulation of communications requesting stay of executions

8. In its resolution 17/5, the Human Rights Council requested the Special Rapporteur in carrying out his mandate “[t]o continue to monitor the implementation of existing international standards on safeguards and restrictions relating to the imposition of capital punishment, bearing in mind the comments made by the Human Rights Committee in its interpretation of article 6 of the International Covenant on Civil and Political Rights, as well as the Second Optional Protocol thereto;”. In this respect, the Special Rapporteur has included the following table on the status of individuals who were the subject of concern with regard to the application of the death penalty in the present report. He urges all concerned States to provide updated information on the status of the subjects of these urgent appeals.

Il encourage les autorités algériennes à conduire les enquêtes d'une manière prompte, approfondie et impartiale, en conformité avec le principe 9 des Principes relatifs à la prévention efficace des exécutions extrajudiciaires, arbitraires et sommaires et aux moyens d'enquêter efficacement sur ces exécutions. Il souhaite aussi rappeler l'importance de tenir le public, y compris les possibles familles des victimes, au courant du déroulement et résultats de l'enquête. General observations:

13. The Special Rapporteur would like to thank the Government of Angola for the responses received during his reporting period. The Special Rapporteur shares the concerns expressed by the Special Rapporteur on the situation of human rights defenders regarding the alleged restrictions on the right to freedom of peaceful assembly in Angola, including excessive use of force against protesters involved in peaceful demonstrations. (A/HRC/25/55/Add.3). In this regard, he would like to stress the importance of ensuring that the international law understanding of the principles of necessity and proportionality is applied stringently in all legislative and policy acts at domestic level.

Character of reply: procedural response

(c) JUA 27/12/2013 Case No. BGD 15/2013 Alleged torture and execution of members of the political opposition, journalists and human rights defenders.

Character of reply: no response

General observations:

15. The Special Rapporteur regrets that no substantive reply has been received to any of the three communications sent to the Government of Bangladesh during the period under review, and encourages the authorities to provide responses in detail on each case. He notes in particular that two of the communications addressed the increasing climate of violence in the country related to both the proceedings before the Bangladesh International Crimes Tribunal, and, at a later stage, to the electoral period. He calls upon the authorities to take all necessary measures to prevent any further violence, and ensure that prompt, impartial and thorough investigations are conducted in all suspected cases of extrajudicial, summary or arbitrary executions, irrespective of who the perpetrators were. Furthermore, the Special Rapporteur would like to reiterate the importance of ensuring the highest level of respect of international human rights law regarding fair trial and due process safeguards at each stage of the proceedings before the Bangladesh International Crimes Tribunal.

Belarus

(a) JUA 01/10/2013 Case No. BLR 3/2013 State Reply: 18/12/2013 Alleged risk of executions after proceedings that did not comply with fair trial and due process standards.

Character of reply: substantive

16. The Special Rapporteur thanks the Government of Belarus for a detailed reply on this communication. While welcoming the Government's information regarding the decision of the Belarussian Supreme Court to overturn the death sentence against Mr. Alyaksandr Haryunou and conduct a retrial on his case, he is concerned about non-official reports that on 24 December 2013 the Homel Regional Court sentenced the defendant to death again. Furthermore, the Special Rapporteur regrets that the Government of Belarus did not provide information on the allegations regarding the mental illness of Mr. Haryunou. In this regard, he reminds the Government that international human rights law prohibits the imposition of the death penalty against persons with mental illness. The Special Rapporteur invites the Government of Belarus to further provide information on this aspect of the case of Mr. Haryunou, and on the current stage of the proceedings against him, as well as to confirm or refute the information on the new death sentence against him. He urges the authorities in Belarus to ensure that the new proceedings in this case fully comply with international law standards, as well as to commute without delay the death sentence against Mr. Haryunou.

17. At the same time, the Special Rapporteur notes with deep concern the information from non-official sources that Messrs. Pavel Selyun and Rygor Yuzepchuk were executed in secret in April or May 2014. He invites the Government of Belarus to confirm this information, and recalls that executions in secret violate international human rights law standards regarding the imposition of the death penalty. The Special Rapporteur further invites the Belarussian authorities to provide additional details on the allegations that the lawyers in all three cases raised in this communication were not given full access to the documents used by the prosecution. He would also appreciate receiving further information on the proceedings against Mr. Selyun and Mr. Rygor Yuzepchuk, as well as their compliance with international human rights law.

(b) JUA 08/01/2014 Case No. BLR 1/2014 State Reply: 31/03/2014 Alleged risk of execution following proceedings that have reportedly been marred by secrecy.

Character of reply: translation awaited

18. The Special Rapporteur thanks the Government of Belarus for its response and looks forward to receiving the translated text. In the meantime, he reiterates his call upon the authorities in Belarus not to execute Mr. Eduard Lykov, to commute his death sentence, and to guarantee the highest level of respect of his rights and freedoms.

General observations:

19. The Special Rapporteur thanks the Government of Belarus for providing detailed responses on both communications sent during the period under review. At the same time, he would like to express deep concern about the continuing reports on the secrecy of judicial proceedings in death penalty cases in Belarus, in particular at the post-conviction stage. In this regard, he would like to remind the Government that international human rights law requires that the proceedings in death penalty cases meet the highest level of respect of fair trial and due process safeguards, at least equal to those contained in article 14 of the International Covenant on Civil and Political Rights. Ensuring full transparency at every stage of the proceedings, including through providing information relating to the execution in advance to the convicted persons, their family members and lawyers, is a crucial element of this requirement. Consequently, he urges the Belarussian authorities to take all necessary steps to ensure full transparency in all such cases, as well as move towards imposing a moratorium on the death penalty, with a view to abolishing it.

Belize

AL 06/02/2014 Case No. BLZ 1/2014 Alleged killing of an 18 year old cross-dresser.

Brazil

(a) JUA 03/06/2013 Case No. BRA 2/2013 State Reply: 16/09/2013 Alleged incidents of excessive violence against indigenous peoples in the states of Mato Grosso do Sul and Pará, including the alleged killing of an indigenous person by police authorities.

Character of reply: substantive

22. The Special Rapporteur thanks the Government of Brazil for its response. He further appreciates the information provided on the Handbook of National Guidelines for Enforcement of Writs on Maintenance or Restoration of Collective Possession; however he would have appreciated more detailed information on the progress of the investigations regarding the killing of Mr. Oziel Gabriel. Moreover, the Special Rapporteur is concerned about the number of incidents involving indigenous peoples in the country. He calls on the Government to carry out prompt, impartial and thorough investigations in order to ensure that those responsible are brought to justice and punished, and to provide the results of any investigations and inquiries in this regard.

(b) JUA 27/02/2014 Case No. BRA 2/2014 State Reply: 28/04/2014 Alleged ongoing acts of torture against and killings of prisoners as well as detention conditions in violation of international human rights law.

Character of reply: substantive

23. The Special Rapporteur thanks the Government of Brazil for its response. While recognising the steps taken by the Government to improve conditions of the places of detention, he urges the Government of Brazil to conduct thorough, prompt and impartial investigations in order to prosecute the perpetrators in cases of deaths in custody. In order to overcome the presumption of State responsibility for a death resulting from injuries sustained in custody, there must be a thorough, prompt and impartial investigation of all suspected cases of extra-legal, arbitrary and summary executions according to principle 9 of the Principles on the Effective Prevention and Investigation of Extra-legal, Arbitrary and Summary Executions.

General observations:

24. The Special Rapporteur would like to thank the Government of Brazil for the responses received during his reporting period. He would like to reiterate his concerns regarding the information received about the excessive use of force during mass demonstrations. Therefore, he urges the State of Brazil to identify and bring to justice those responsible, to grant adequate compensation to the victim or his family and to take steps to end impunity and the recurrence of such acts.

Character of reply: no response

General observations:

25. The Special Rapporteur regrets that the Cambodian Government has not responded to any of the two communications sent during the period under review, and encourages it to provide substantive replies in both cases.

28. The Special Rapporteur thanks the Government of the People's Republic of China for its response, and takes note of the Government's comments on the facts of the case. He would appreciate receiving additional and detailed information on each stage of any investigation regarding the allegations of use of force, including lethal force, by the security officers, as well as its conclusions and the elements that led to reaching such conclusions. 46. The Special Rapporteur thanks the Government of India for its reply. These aspects raise the concern that the death penalty may have been imposed and carried out against Mr. Guru unlawfully. The Special Rapporteur would like to remind the Government that international human rights law requires the proceedings in death penalty cases to meet the highest level of respect of fair trial and due process safeguards, at least equal to those contained in article 14 of the International Covenant on Civil and Political Rights. He invites the Government of India to confirm this aspect, as well as to provide details on the respect of international human rights law standards in this case at each stage of the proceedings, in accordance with the questions formulated in the previous communications sent.

In this context, he reiterates his call upon India to take one step further and establish a moratorium on executions with a view to abolishing the death penalty.

53. The Special Rapporteur thanks the Iranian Government for the two replies, providing brief information on the charges and history of proceedings against Messrs. Habibollah Golparipour (or Gholpari-poor) and Reza Esmaili. He deeply deplores the information on the execution of both individuals on 26 October 2013, which, according to the information received, did not comply with international human rights law standards. In this regard, he would like to recall that the "most serious crimes" provision under international law requires that only the offence of intentional killing may be punishable by death in countries which have not yet abolished the capital punishment. Furthermore, the most stringent respect of fair trial and due process guarantees must be ensured in death penalty cases. He invites the Government to provide additional detailed information on how the highest respect of the aforementioned international law standards was ensured in both cases.

54. The Special Rapporteur further notes that no information has been provided in the Government's responses on the other 14 cases of execution mentioned in the communication of 28 November 2013. He strongly encourages the Iranian authorities to provide substantive replies on these cases as well.

55. While looking forward to receiving additional information from the Iranian authorities in response to the communications of 7 October and 28 November 2013, the Special Rapporteur regrets that replies have not yet been provided on eight out of ten communications sent during the period under review. He invites the Government of the Islamic Republic of Iran to respond substantively to all of them.

56. The Special Rapporteur is particularly concerned about the high number of reported cases regarding the imposition of the death penalty in the Islamic Republic of Iran, in violation of a number of international human rights law standards. He notes with concern the official and non-official reports on the execution of several individuals whose cases were outlined in the communications sent during the period under review. Should the allegations be corroborated, he calls upon the Government to stay all executions of individuals on death row and to commute without delay their sentences. He also reiterates his call upon the Iranian authorities to bring its domestic legislation and practice in conformity with the international law requirements regarding the imposition of the death penalty in countries which have not yet abolished it. Character of reply: substantive

57. The Special Rapporteur thanks the Government of Iraq for the detailed response to this communication. He takes note of the information that, at the moment of the reply, there had been no plans to amend the Iraqi Code of Criminal Procedure. He appreciates the details provided on the domestic constitutional and legal provisions regarding the guarantees for a fair trial and due process. He would like to invite the Government of Iraq to provide further information on the implementation of these provisions in cases of the death penalty, as well as on measures undertaken to investigate any alleged violation of them. With regard to the Government's comments on the offences punishable by death, the Special Rapporteur would like to reiterate that international human rights law standards require that the death penalty may be imposed only for the crime of intentional killing.

58. At the same time, the Special Rapporteur regrets the decision of the Iraqi Government not to provide a complete list of all individuals who are currently on death row in Iraq. He reiterates his call to the Iraqi authorities to send such a list of all individuals who received death sentences, irrespective of the stage of the proceedings against them. He would appreciate that this list provides the full names of all individuals on death row and their identity, as well as details on the alleged offences for which they were sentenced to death, each stage of the proceedings on their cases and the measures undertaken to ensure the highest level of respect of international human rights law in each case. Finally, the Special Rapporteur would appreciate receiving the list of the 17 individuals reportedly executed in August 2013, in accordance with the Government's commitment in its response to enclose such a list.

Noting that the translation available is a summary of the reply provided in Arabic by the Government, the Special Rapporteur looks forward to receiving the full translation of the text before formulating his observations on the case of Mr. Ahmad Nuri Badawi 'Abbas. At the same time, he notes that the Government's reply does not contain information in response to question 5 of the communication of 11 October 2013 regarding the reports of execution of 42 individuals on 9 and 10 October 2013. He strongly encourages the Iraqi authorities to provide detailed responses to this question as well.

He reiterates his deep concern about the continuing reports on the very high number of executions and individuals at risk of execution in Iraq, in violation of international human rights law, in particular of the most serious crimes provision and the standards on fair trial and due process. Should these allegations be corroborated, he calls upon the Government of Iraq to stay all executions and commute without delay the death sentences.

(b) JUA 08/03/2013 Case No. SAU 4/2013 State Reply: 30/04/2013 Alleged risk of imminent execution after proceedings that did not comply with international fair trial and due process guarantees, and the most serious crimes provision.

Character of reply: addresses some substantive issues

78. The communication of 8 March 2013 was a follow-up letter to the communication sent on 4 March 2013 on the risk of imminent executions of seven individuals in Saudi Arabia, reportedly in violation of international human rights law standards. Although the Special Rapporteur thanks the Government of Saudi Arabia for its response to the communications on this case, he would like to express deep concern about the information from non-official sources that all seven defendants were executed on 13 March 2013. He would appreciate receiving updated information and a confirmation from the Government of Saudi Arabia regarding this fact.

79. With regard to the content of the Government's reply, the Special Rapporteur takes note of the information provided on the facts of the case. He further notes with deep concern that the list of alleged charges under which the individuals were sentenced to death, as outlined in paragraph 1 of the Government's reply, indicate a violation of the most serious crimes provision under international law, providing that only the crime of intentional killing may be punishable by death. Since the respective list refers to charges with no lethal consequences, the sentencing to death and the reported execution of the seven individuals seem to have occurred in violation of international standards on the imposition of the death penalty. He urges the Saudi authorities to bring its domestic legislation into conformity with the most serious crimes provision under international law, and refrain from any further death sentence or execution in violation of this standard.

80. Finally, the Special Rapporteur takes note of the Government's assurances that the defendants were not subjected to torture, and would appreciate receiving additional detailed information on any investigations conducted on the allegations of torture and their eventual results.

Character of reply: addresses some substantive issues

81. The Special Rapporteur thanks the Government of Saudi Arabia for its response. He would appreciate receiving additional detailed information on how the international standards on fair trial and due process were ensured at each stage of the proceedings against Mr. Raef Badawi. Information from non-official sources indicates that Mr. Badawi was sentenced to 10 years in prison, 1,000 lashes, and a 1 million Saudi Riyal fine. While welcoming, under the scope of his mandate, that the alleged charges did not entail a sentence of death, the Special Rapporteur is deeply alarmed about reports on the other violations identified in the case against Mr. Badawi. He shares the concerns expressed in this regard by a group of United Nations human rights experts in the joint News Release of 15 May 2014, entitled “Saudi Arabia: UN rights experts outraged by extremely harsh sentence against blogger” (available at: <http://www.ohchr.org/EN/NewsEvents/Pages/DisplayNews.aspx?NewsID=14597&LangID=E>).

General observations:

82. The Special Rapporteur thanks the Government of Saudi Arabia for its replies to the majority of the communications sent during the period under review. He strongly encourages the Government to provide a substantive response to the joint urgent appeal of 7 October 2013. The Special Rapporteur notes in particular that all cases raised during the reporting period concern the death penalty that has been reportedly imposed and / or implemented in violation of international human rights law, in particular of the most serious crimes provision and the standards on fair trial and due process. Should these allegations be corroborated, he calls upon the Government of Saudi Arabia to stay all executions and commute without delay all death sentences. He further urges the Saudi authorities to bring its domestic legislation and practice in conformity with the international law requirements regarding the imposition of the death penalty in countries which have not yet abolished it.

He would appreciate receiving additional detailed information on the investigations carried out to verify specifically the allegations of attacks of the three victims by the police, and the evidence used in this regard. On the case of Mr. Chandrasiri Dasanayaka, the Special Rapporteur takes note that, at the moment of receipt of the Government's reply, the inquiries were still on-going. He invites the Government of Sri Lanka to provide updated information on the current stage of the proceedings in this case, and their eventual results. He would like to remind the Government, in this regard, of the duty of the States to ensure thorough, prompt and impartial investigations and prosecutions on all cases of extra-legal, arbitrary and summary executions.

(b) JAL 02/09/2013 Case No. LKA 4/2013 State Reply: 19/09/2013 Allegations of excessive use of force, including lethal force, during a peaceful assembly, resulting in deaths and injuries.

He takes note of the Government's comments on the factual elements of the case, while recalling the international concerns expressed about the broad and vague definition of terrorism in Turkey. Within the remit of his mandate, the Special Rapporteur welcomes the information regarding the opening of a series of investigations, in particular those undertaken in relation to the deaths that occurred and those initiated against police officers in terms of the charges of injury and / or exceeding the limits of the right to use of force. In this regard, the Special Rapporteur would appreciate receiving additional and detailed information on the current stage of the investigations, including those related to all deaths that occurred in the context of the protests in May and June 2013 in Turkey, and in particular to the deaths of the four individuals mentioned in the communication. 107. The Special Rapporteur regrets that, at the time of the finalisation of this report, no substantive responses had been transmitted to several communications sent during the reporting period and he trusts that the Government will provide responses to those communications shortly. He is concerned about the number of death sentences imposed and executions carried out in circumstances where compliance with international standards on fair trial and due process are doubted, in particular, in matters involving individuals who are alleged to suffer from mental illness. He reiterates that international law regards the death penalty as an exception to the fundamental right to life and that it must be applied in the most restrictive manner, only being carried out pursuant to a final judgment rendered by a competent court after legal processes which give all possible safeguards to ensure a fair trial.

Character of reply: addresses some substantive issues

118. The Special Rapporteur thanks the Government of India for its response. He would appreciate receiving further detailed information on how the right to a fair trial and due process guarantees, as understood under international human rights law, were ensured at each stage of the proceedings against Mr. Ajmal Kasab. In particular, he would be grateful to receive detailed responses to the allegations regarding the impediments of the defendant's lawyer to have sufficient time to prepare the defence's case and to cross-examine adequately the witnesses and evidence used by the prosecution, the defendant's limited access to his lawyers during the proceedings at both the High and Supreme Courts, and the conduct of his execution in secret. In this regard, the Special Rapporteur would like to remind the Government that international human rights law requires the proceedings in death penalty cases to meet the highest level of respect of fair trial and due process safeguards, at least equal to those contained in article 14 of the International Covenant on Civil and Political Rights. Ensuring full transparency at every stage of the proceedings, including through prior information of the convicted persons, their family members and lawyers, is a crucial element of this requirement.

Furthermore, he would be particularly grateful to be provided with detailed information on any investigations carried out with regard to the reported deaths of Mr. Udayakumar, Mr. Anthony Samy and Mr. Sahayam Francis. In this regard, he would like to reiterate that the principles of necessity and proportionality under international human rights law require that lethal force may be used by law enforcement officials as a last resort and solely with the objective of saving life. Finally, he would like to remind the Indian authorities of their duty to ensure thorough, prompt and impartial investigations on all suspected cases of extrajudicial, summary or arbitrary executions.

due process guarantees. He would particularly appreciate the Government's response on the allegations that the defendants were tortured, with the aim of forcing them to confess, as well as on any investigations undertaken by the Iranian authorities regarding these allegations. Should these allegations be corroborated, the Special Rapporteur would like to express concern that the death penalty may have been imposed in this case in violation of international human rights standards. In this respect, he would like to refer to the Basic Principles on the Use of Force and Firearms by Law Enforcement Officials (adopted by the Eighth United Nations Congress on the Prevention of Crime and the Treatment of Offenders, Havana, Cuba, 27 August to 7 September 1990).
